Welcome and Introduction

Thank you for your interest in the FCC Internship Program! The purpose of Internship Program is to combine classroom learning with employment in a position relating to a student's chosen field of study. Internships provide learning experiences not available in the classroom setting, as well as opportunities to explore career paths, acquire entry-level career experience, and develop workplace competencies that employers value when hiring new employees.

By hosting student interns, you play a vital role in the student learning process. We appreciate all you do to support our students during their internship experiences, and we hope you will find this handbook a helpful tool for navigating the internship process.

What is an internship?

An internship is a planned work experience that provides an opportunity for students to gain entry-level career competencies in a field directly related to his or her area of college study. Internships offer students an opportunity to apply the knowledge they have gained in the classroom in the workplace, earn academic credit, and gain valuable resume building experience.

Employer Benefits

Internships also offer employers a wide range of benefits, including the following:

- Additional assistance with work tasks
- An opportunity to give back to the community by developing a student for the next generation of your profession
- An opportunity to try out a potential future employee for your company/organization
- An opportunity to build a partnership with FCC Career Programs, which educates current and prospective employees and improve courses and degree programs as a result of offering your feedback

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Do I need to pay a student intern?

The employer decides whether an intern is paid or not. Internships at FCC are considered an integral part of certain college programs; therefore, internships are required or offered to students as an educational experience. Students learn by doing and their work should benefit employers. Employers are expected to educate interns beyond just supervision. Some employers find that offering pay is an enticement to prospective interns.

Q: Do I treat the intern as a student or employee?

The answer is both. Employers should expect interns to accept and perform work, work every assigned day, be on time, and follow other requirements of employees. Employers should also expect interns to ask many questions and seek opportunities to learn beyond their assigned duties. For example, employers invite interns to meetings or arrange job shadowing so they can learn about the organization, its work processes, and the general industry.

Q: Who do I contact at FCC if there is a problem?

- Recruiting issues: Contact the Internship & Apprenticeship Coordinator at 301-624-2724.
- Issues pertaining to an intern: Contact the intern's Faculty Advisor; if unknown, contact the Internship & Apprenticeship Coordinator at 301-624-2724.

Q: Am I expected to hire the intern after graduation?

Employers have no obligation to hire interns. Your primary obligation is to further develop a student's skills and provide opportunities for gaining experience that complement the student's college program. Some employers benefit from internships by being able to evaluate potential employees' first-hand. Many interns are of course interested in employment after graduation.
